If you cause your ship to stop and place the head of a long tube in the water and place the outer extremity to your ear, you will hear ships at a great distance from you.

Note on the Text

In "Towards an Ontology of Media" Friedrich Kittler observes that in articulating water and air as 'betweens', Aristotle turned the common Greek preposition — metaxú, between — into a philosophical concept: tò metaxú, the medium. Between "absence and presence, farness and nearness, being and soul, there exists no nothing any more, but a mediatic relation" (Kittler 2009: 26). "water.under" emerges from a large web-based work called "Etheric Ocean" which reflects on the mediatic relation of human bodies and underwater sounds within the vast medium of ocean. This concrete text was produced by copying a line from a PDF of a performance script based on "Etheric Ocean" and pasting it into an email. Rather than seeing the resulting text as an inconsequential error or even a happy accident I see it as a perfectly logical outcome of an iterative and performative writing process, and a transcript of a failure to communicate between mediums as disparate as land mammals, computers, and oceans. A version of this text was performed in Dartington, Devon (UK) as part of The South West Poetry Tour (August 2016) in collaboration with S J Fowler. The video of the performance is available here https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YJdBccXYmEo
