Staff Of College Cord Holds Annual Banquet And Business Meeting

President of College and Dean of Women, Present as Guests, Give Encouraging Addresses

"Business is business" was the conclusion drawn by the College Cord staff after their annual meeting held February 14th, at the Elite Cafe.

Business was not all that occupied the minds of the busy students that evening. The business meeting was preceded by a banquet which came as near to the old Eleusinian feasts as it is possible to come in this day and age. After that inner being had been satisfied, the meeting was called to order by Fred H. Goos, the retiring Editor.

All the reports showed the Cord to be progressing, and the first to endorse this fact was Herman Little in his report of the circulation department. Julius Neff, in his report for the advertising department, pointed out that 50% of the original advertisers are still with the Cord.

PHYSICAL TRAINING DISPLAY WILL BE BIGGER AND BETTER

Physical Directors Anticipate that Annual Spring Event this Year will Exceed all Former Shows.

From all indications the Physical Training Display to be held the end of April, is going to surpass by far all previous displays, in variety as well as in size. Both the Physical Instructors have a variety of original ideas which they hope to put across. Among these, is the plan of A. Pauli, men's physical instructor, to form a Glee Club, composed of the whole school if possible, and to stage an opening Grand March. There will be as usual, parallel bar and mat work, pyramids and high diving, all superior to that of former years. If enough can be persuaded to enter, Mr. Pauli intends to put on a large drill. This, however, will be impossible without the co-operation of everyone in the school.

The Board has been notified concerning the pressing need for dumbbells and Indian clubs, and if all goes well and they arrive in time, these will appear for the first time on the display program. If it is possible, a mixed Indian Club drill will be arranged. There are plans going through for several dances and skits. An opportunity will be given for the wrestling team to give an exhibition.

If the weather is suitable the display will be held outside, where the events will show to better effect. The seating capacity will also be greater.

Everybody's support is earnestly desired by those who are planning for a bigger and better Physical Training Display.

I'd like to be a could-be,
If I could not be an are,
For a could-be is a may-be

For a might-have-been, has never been
But the has-been was an are!

College Cage Squad Guests Of The Coach At Splendid Banquet

Members of Team and Friends are Royally Entertained at Granite Club.

Don Roberts, the basketball coach, was host to the members of the team and their friends on the evening of Monday, Feb. 16, at a banquet held at the Granite Club. Fred Mueller, the manager of the team, acted as toastmaster, and after the repast he called on Fred Goos, the captain of last year's team, for a brief history of the basketball activities at Waterloo College. Mr. Goos reviewed the salient features of the past few years and gave the boys a few words of encouragement, expressing the hope that next year would be even more successful than this year has been.

The score-keeper and sub-manager of this year's team, Harvey Goos, gave some strong hints as to the good points and the failings of the playing this season. He stressed the lack of real team-work as one of the outstanding reasons for their losses in the C.O.A.B.A. League.

Miss Gracienne Dean, one of the guests, rendered a well-received classical selection on the piano.

DATES SET FOR PRELIMINARIES OF PUBLIC SPEAKING CONTEST

Initial Tests to be Made in Chapel on March 19 and 20.

Although the details have not yet been decided upon, plans for the annual public speaking contest of Waterloo College are under way, and it is expected that the preliminaries will be held in the College Chapel on the afternoons of March 19 and 20.

According to custom, the members of the two public speaking classes, English 11 and English 21, will be required to enter the contest. The large enrollment in these two courses, probably the largest in the history of the college, ensures keen rivalry for the preliminaries.

Besides the members of the public speaking classes, it is expected that a number of other students of the college will enter the contest. With members of the public speaking classes and upper classmen of the college competing, a high standard of speaking is assured.

Work Has Been Begun On New Announcement

College Calendar for 1931-32 is Being Prepared.

According to information received from Dean Willis C. Froats, work has been begun on the announcement and Calendar of Waterloo College, for the year 1931-32. Collection and preparation of the material for the announcement has been in progress for some time, and the final work will be done as soon as the galleys are received from the University of Western Ontario.

Included in the announcement will be the revised list of scholarships offered by Waterloo College to Matriculation students.

Students are eagerly looking forward to the publication of the announcement in order to obtain information concerning any additional courses which may be added next year.

DR. W. SHERWOOD FOX TO ADDRESS ATHENAEUM NEXT THURSDAY

Impromptu Speeches Heard by Germania

Professor Henkel is Critic at Meeting.

A very interesting and instructive meeting was enjoyed by the majority of the members of the Germania on Thursday, Feb. 26th. The program opened with the singing of "Gaudeamus Igitur" and was followed by the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting. Verna Lau-man offered a very pleasing poem, "Erlkoenig," showing marked ability in her rendition of this German poem. Immediately after this number Carroll Crouse gave a very fine reading.

Students will hear President of University of Western Ontario.

Preparations have been completed for the meeting of the Athenaeum Society on Thursday, March 5th, when Dr. W. Sherwood Fox, Ph.D., D. Litt., F.R.S.C., President of the University of Western Ontario, will address the members of the society and their friends in the College gymnasium.

An invitation was extended to Dr. Fox to speak here in January, but because of engagements contracted previously he was unable to make the trip to Waterloo at that time. A suitable date has been arranged by the newly-elected executive of the Athenaeum, and members of the so-

The Middle Class. During a visit to Princeton, N.J., Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, declared that in his opinion the college student who does not immerse himself in his studies, and who, on the other hand, does not devote all his attention to athletic and social activities, has the best chance in life.

Sir Henry divided students into three classes: those who are "book worms," those who, in addition to studying, take part in athletics and show a disposition to meet people and mix with them, and those who spend all their time in athletics and social activities. The railway man points to the middle class as the one containing students most likely to succeed in the battle of life after training days are over.

In making this statement, Sir Henry Thornton put into a few words a theory which, although no one has yet attempted to substantiate it statistically, is believed by the majority of those who come into contact with college life.

The student who, on leaving college, is equipped with book knowledge and nothing else, is liable to find that the practical world knows a few tricks which his books did not teach him. On the other hand, the so-called student who leads in the athletic and social world of his college but to whom books are anathema, will find later that the world is not composed solely of gridirons and drawing rooms. However, the man who attains the golden mean, who knows how to mix studies, athletics and social activities harmoniously, receives a training which will stand him in good stead when he is trying to wrest a living from the world.

Students at Waterloo College, on the whole, seem to have reached this happy medium. We have no "book-worms", neither have we any campus heroes. A small student body and a large number of school activities make the former impossible; and the latter type has not yet put in an appearance at Waterloo. Practically all of our students fit into Sir Henry Thornton's "middle class"; they balance their work and play. And so according to Sir Henry, they have the best chance of succeeding in life's battle.

A Lenten Thought. With the Lenten season again here, a number of local students, according to custom, have renounced some pleasure or luxury during the weeks of the Passion of our Lord. Some devotees of the weed have stopped smoking until after Easter, while other students have given up the movies or other pleasures which occasionally are theirs during the rest of the year.

This is merely following tradition. On Ash Wednesday Christians the world over mark the beginning of the Lenten Season by thus abandoning some luxury for the ensuing seven weeks. A clearer light was shed on the subject of Lenten devotion, however, by Rev. Frederick B. Clausen, President of Waterloo College and Seminary, at a sermon in St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, Kitchener, on the occasion of a recent Lenten service.

President Clausen held up the story of the woman who

CONCORDS

Students are eagerly looking forward to hearing Dr. W. Sherwood Fox, president of the University of Western Ontario, next Thursday evening. Dr. Fox is known as an interesting and effective speaker, and the topic on which he will address the Athenaeum Society, "Mussolini and the New Italy," is one of great interest at the present moment.

According to reports from students in all courses, the various professors are expecting much more work this semester than last term. Each professor seems to believe that his is the only subject in which students are registered. However, there is an old adage to the effect that "hard work has never killed anyone." It is true that the less one has to do, the less one does, and vice versa. According to this, there should be some impressive reports posted after the examinations next May.

Subscribers to "The College Cord" are requested to notify the paper in the case of changes of address. It has been brought to the notice of the circulation manager that a number of copies are reaching their destinations by means of roundabout routes, being sent first to the original address and then being posted from there to the present place of residence of the subscriber. Several copies have also been returned because subscribers have moved without notifying the Cord. If your Cord is not reaching you regularly, notify us, and give us your change of address.

Addressing the College Cord staff at its annual banquet, President F. B. Clausen assured the Cord of his support and asked, in turn, the support of the Cord in his task of "boosting" the school. The co-operation of the College President and the College newspaper should produce good results.

There were rumors, during the first semester, that the Cercle Francais would resume its activities in the second semester, after a lapse of several years. Officers were elected, but due to the press of other activities at the time it was found impossible to hold meetings. A series of programs, it was planned, would be begun in the second semester. A month of the second semester has already passed and the Cercle Francais has shown no signs of activity. French students are anxious that activities be begun soon.

A large number of Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate girls took part in the production of "The College Flapper," and through them Waterloo College has gained a considerable amount of publicity by means of the play. "The College Flapper" may be instrumental in bringing more students to the college next year from the Twin Cities.

poured precious ointment over the head of Jesus as he sat at meat in the house of Simon the Leper, as an example of love which should be followed during the Lenten season. Nothing, he pointed out, was too expensive for this woman to give to the Master. Our love for Christ, he declared, should be as great as was hers. If we love Him thus, it will follow naturally that we will give up luxuries during the weeks in which He suffered.

This is a thought which might well be borne in mind during the weeks of Lent. The renunciation of luxuries, then, will not be merely a mechanical matter, something which according to custom must be done when Lent starts, but will rise to the plane of a living, practical example of our Christian sincerity and our love for Him who died for us.

IMPROMPTU SPEECHES

Impromptu speeches were then in order and every member very aptly applied himself to the theme "Was mir vom College gefaellt". A great many reasons were given by the students, why they enjoyed College life and especially was the good fellowship and unity among students stressed. Some also remarked that they were pleased with the tasty meals, clean sport and fine opportunity for sleeping during the day.

Dr. H. Schorten, the Honorary-President, could not be present on account of illness but Prof. H. L. Henkel very capably acted as critic. He admonished the students to practice speaking the German language whenever possible and to read a great deal of good German literature, which could be found in the College library. In closing his remarks Prof. Henkel stated that "nothing is more successful than success."

As is customary a few German songs were sung before the meeting adjourned.

—W— ESSAY ON A COW (Exchange)

The following illuminative essay on the subject, "What Is a Cow?" published in the St. John's Record, Collegeville, Minn., is attributed to Wilfred Ludowese, a student of that school.

"The cow is a female quadruped with an alto voice and a countenance in which there is no guile. She collaborates with the pump in the production of a liquid called milk, provides the filler for hash, sausages and similar objects, and at last is skinned by those she has benefited, as mortals commonly are.

"The young cow is called a calf and is used in the manufacture of chicken salad, breaded veal and other uses of which no further knowledge is necessary.

"The cow's tail is mounted aft and has a universal joint. It is used to disturb marauding flies and the tassel on the end has unique educational value. Persons who come in contact with the tassel have vocabularies of peculiar and impressive force.

"The cow has two stomachs. The one on the ground floor is used as a warehouse and has no other function. When this one is filled, the cow retires to a quiet spot where her bad manners will occasion no comment. The raw material thus conveyed for the second time to the interior of her face is pulverized and delivered to the auxiliary stomach, where it is converted into cow.

"The cow has no upper plate. All of her teeth are parked in the lower part of her face. This arrangement was perfected by an efficiency expert to keep her from gumming things up. As a result she bites up and gums down."

SOCIAL

An event which will not soon be forgotten by a few of the College students took place Tuesday afternoon, February 24th, at the Women's Residence, Bricker Avenue, when the Class '32 was entertained by Professor Haug and Professor Doherty.

The enjoyment was greatly increased by amusing and very interesting character studies of those present. These studies were said to be "true to life," and in the future, the members of the Class '32 will be kept under close observation for the proof of these statements.

A dainty tea was served which brought the afternoon to a fitting close.

The graduating class of the College was entertained to a delightful afternoon tea at the Women's Residence recently. Miss H. M. Haug and Miss E. Doherty acted as hostesses. Much merriment and fun added sauce to the dainty luncheon provided.

The Women's Residence of the College was in festive array recently when Miss H. M. Haug, M.A., Dean of Women, entertained at the tea-hour for the co-eds of the College. She was assisted by Miss Louise Twietmeyer and Miss Audrey Froats.

A delightful Valentine supper was tendered the Senior Class by Miss Louise Twietmeyer, secretary-treasurer of the class, at her home in Waterloo. The tables were beautifully decorated with hearts and other accoutrements of Dan Cupid. Following the supper various Valentine games were played in which the prize winners were Fred H. Goos and Hubert Casselman.

Special guests for the occasion were Dean and Mrs. Froats, Miss H. M. Haug, Dean of Women, and Miss E. Doherty, Professor of English.

It is expected that Dr. Fox will speak on the subject of "Mussolini and the new Italy," a topic with which his travels in Italy have made him familiar. Personal acquaintances of Dr. Fox among the faculty here are confident that he will treat this theme with the effectiveness and interest which is characteristic of him as a speaker.

The meeting will begin at eight o'clock and F. H. Goos, President of the Athenaeum Society, has expressed himself as being confident that Dr. Fox's reputation as a speaker will ensure a large attendance.

JUNIOR LOSES HIS FIRST TOOTH

(By Clara Bernhardt)

Junior gnawed complacently at the sparse meat on a spare rib. Suddenly his visage changed, and he laid aside the bone, crying.

"I can't eat anymore! My tooth is loose." He arose from the table with a wounded air, and hied mirrorwards. What he saw there did not tend to restore his lost composure.

"It's bleeding! Baaaah! It's bleeding!" he howled lustily.

"Let me see!" his mother commanded.

She examined the offending member closely. "No, it's not," she denied soothingly. "The gum is only reddened."

"No," Junior insisted with a whoop, "it's bleeding! Aaah!" Bawling loudly, he juttied out his lower lip, and waved his arms about dramatically. He, at the same time, managed to execute a few wild steps of an original dance, the like of which never has been, and never will be again, seen on these shores.

While the family laughed unsympathetically, Junior continued to dance before the obliging mirror. His appearance must have been gratifying, for not once did he waver. The faces he achieved would have done Lon Chaney credit, and the howls issuing from his healthy lungs have not been equalled since the early days of Indian war whoops.

His family enjoyed the novel spectacle to the full. But everything comes to an end sometime, even so Junior's bellowing blasts.

"Let's tie a thread around it!" proposed his mother during a lull in the storm.

"Naah!" he protested loudly. "You'll pull it!"

"No, I won't," she promised coaxingly.

"Well, what's the good of putting the thread around if you don't pull it?" he demanded suspiciously.

"Well you see dear, it's a sort of magic thread! It pulls the tooth out itself!"

"How?"

"That's it!" mysteriously. "We don't know!"

Junior reluctantly consented, after a lengthy oration. The thread was duly found, and fastened to Junior's tooth.

"DON'T PULL!"

A pull, however, was not necessary. The tooth, hanging by a mere hairsbreadth, came out practically of its own accord.

"What'd you do?" he queried.

"Why see dear, the tooth is out!" holding aloft the tiny atom.

Junior was momentarily startled, but not to be deprived of his lawful result. "Ow! ow! my tooth is out! Ooooh, it hurts."

His previous outburst was as nothing, compared with the ensuing five minutes. Tears of indignation (disguised as of pain!) rained cop-

Seminary Notes

At a recent meeting of the Seminary faculty, theses for the degree of Bachelor of Divinity were received from two ministers of the Canada Synod, Rev. H. K. Binhammer and Rev. J. Alberti. These theses are now under consideration.

Rev. Ernest Walther of Roumania has entered the Seminary here with the purpose of studying the English language. Rev. Mr. Walther has been sent here to work among the Siebenburger Saxons in the Twin Cities and will do missionary work among them. A welcome addition to the student body, he has already become well acquainted with his classmates.

On Wednesday, Feb. 18th, a group of Seminarians and President Clausen surveyed the various steps in furniture making at the factory of the Globe Furniture Company. Their interest centred in viewing the woodwork to be placed in the new Catholic Church in Windsor. Their observation fitted in nicely with the study of Church architecture. Further visits to various firms in the Twin Cities will probably be made in the future.

ously down his red cheeks. He black bottomed and charlestoned wildly about the room—mainly before the mirror. Finally the tears were all used—the lungs were tired—there were no more fox trot steps left to be executed. Silence. Junior was quieted by the prospect of his tooth changing into a nickel if placed overnight in a glass of water, further providing that he made no more fuss.

"What a rumpus over a little tooth!" his mother exclaimed weakly.

"We all had a good laugh, anyway," someone else remarked.

"And everything is grist for the mill," I contributed.

"What mill?" Junior questioned with interest.

"The writer's mill," I told him solemnly.

Regulars Trim Subs In Torrid Struggle

First-string Cage Squad Triples
Score of Seconds.

The "Regulars" and the "Subs" met in a hand-to-hand struggle for supremacy in basketball on Thursday, Feb. 19th. The two divisions of our team have long wanted the opportunity to defeat each other and their zeal to make good was shown in the rough tactics which they employed.

The first half was fast and exciting, the Regulars holding their own throughout. The Subs seemed a little too eager and as a result they were frequently penalized. Little and Neeb of the forward line were the scorers for the Regulars but the Subs succeeded in getting only one basket, the half ending with the score 12-2.

The second half was more like basketball, only a few penalties being given each side. Little and Scherbarth managed to sink a few more baskets and Kruspe, for the Subs, saved their name from being dragged down to dishonor by getting two baskets. The final score was 30-10 with the Regulars victorious.

The Subs still feel that they are better than the Regulars and have challenged them to another game in the near future.

The teams were: Regulars—Little, Neeb, Scherbarth, Jones and Casselman.

Subs—F. Goos, Neigh, Pauli, Kruspe, S. Alberti, Hamm and Gomann.

"Tall Timber" Bows Before Regular Team

Basketball Squad Defeats Picked
Band by 29-18 Count.

Having decided to try out the mettle of the boys' basketball team, Fritz Haak with his picked band of "Big Boys", challenged the regular to combat, Tuesday, Feb. 17th. A good-sized gallery witnessed this game which ended in a victory of 29-18 for the regulars, after a fast and closely contested game. The regulars were at the top of their form, showing remarkably good combination and shooting well. There was also some fine shooting on the part of the "Big Boys." At times the game threatened to degenerate into rugby. Karl Knauff handled the whistle.

Teams: Regulars — Scherbarth, Jones, Casselman, Neeb, Little, Neigh, Pauli, Alberti.

Sport Comment

Thoughts are again turned to the Physical Training Display, and determined preparations are being made. The boys' gym class is striving mightily to master the intricacies of the parallel bars; the wrestlers are polishing up their holds and the girls are busily planning drills and dances.

The Directors need the co-operation of everyone in the school in order to stage the different drills and other events properly.

If the "six-footers" played a little more basketball and a little less rugby, they might develop some real players.

Why can't the regulars shoot as well in an outside game as they can at home? There was beautiful shooting the other night, several baskets being sunk from center.

There are rumours floating around that there are going to be some clowns at this year's display. They were missed last year.

It is just too bad that the basketball team waits till the end of the season to show their real form. If, however, they play all next year as they do now, things will look rosier.

There will be a real dance this year in the display.

The weather man is going to be approached concerning fine weather for the big day. Holding the display outside will be a great improvement over holding it in the gym. The lighting and visibility will be better and there will be room for considerably more people.

Another issue will perhaps give a fairly complete report on the badminton tournament. Now that the basketball season is over there will be more time for playing.

College Gives Team From "Y" Hard Battle

Classy Vikings Meet Stiff Opposition
From Local Basketeers.

The Waterloo College cagers went down to defeat in a hard-fought exhibition game at the K-W "Y" against the "Y" Vikings on Tuesday night, Feb. 24th, by a count of 31-16.

From the beginning the local team played a defensive game and continued this throughout. The score does not indicate the number of shots made, however, since both teams had plenty of chances at the baskets and only poor shooting kept the score from becoming larger.

Neeb led the scoring for Waterloo, sinking in three baskets, while Scherbarth and Kruspe each accounted for two. Schultz was the outstanding player on the other team with eight goals to his credit. On the defense Jones and Casselman played well while Gordon and Eggert turned in a good game for the Vikings.

During the first half, the Vikings secured a lead over the College of eleven points. Near the end of the game the Waterloo quintet began to find the basket and rolled in several goals which came too late to win the game.

The line-up:

"Y" Vikings: r. forward, Roberts, l. forward Perkins, centre, Schultz, r. guards, Gordon and Eggert, l. guard, Bricker.

Waterloo College: r. forwards, Alberti and Kruspe, l. forward, Neeb, centre, Scherbarth, r. guard, Jones, l. guard Casselman.

Referee, F. Mueller.

DATES SET FOR

The winners in the preliminary contest will compete for the gold and silver medals offered by the Kitchener-Waterloo Rotary Club, in some public auditorium in the Twin Cities, a definite decision not yet having been made on the exact location of the finals of the contest. The finals will take place during the week of April 7.

A number of students are already considering subjects for the contest. The judges have not yet been appointed.

as a guest, assured the basketball team of his support in the future in a few words to the team and its supporters. He also expressed a hope that there would be a girls' basketball team next year. President Clausen agreed with the sub-manager, that the team must work as one if they would be successful. Individual star-playing would not make a good team, and to make a good team they must work hard.

William Hill then favored the gathering with a saxophone solo which was greatly appreciated.

The company then adjourned to the lobby where the coach, Don Roberts, with a distinct note of optimism, addressed the members of the team, thanking them for their co-operation during the past season and expressing a hope that they would have a better team next year.

Fred Mueller gave some personal remarks regarding each member of the team and each was given three cheers for his work during the season.

The music throughout the evening was provided by Hiller's Orchestra of Kitchener.

Spiritual Forces In Education

The Church has come to see that if it depends upon the colleges to render the foundation-building service which it is under the compulsion of rendering through them, they must, each of them, be equipped and endowed with every modern facility for doing the great work they are providentially called to do. Their brave and heroic struggles with poverty, their pathetic efforts to make bricks without straw, the noble spirit in which great men have worn themselves out in work and sacrifice in a cause, the significance of which the church, indifferent or unintelligent, has failed to realize, the amazingly large educational means, these achievements with such small things cannot be accepted now as a substitute for obligations that are clear, definite and unavoidable. For we have learned too well the meaning of the educational value of libraries, dormitories, endowments to let even the emphasis we have placed upon the spiritual forces in education cause showing the confidence that is held in the paper. Hubert Casselman gave the financial report and urged all members to co-operate. "Every good thing has its ups and downs. We must get together and put sincerity in it."

Fred Goos, retiring Editor, gave a few words of advice to the new staff. "Each member of the staff should do his own share of the work, as the publication of the Cord is a serious business. To be of service to the Cord and the Editor, give your best—always room for improvement. Everything done for the Cord is not tangible." He also pointed out that the new executive would be watched with interest.

Rev. F. B. Clausen, president of Waterloo College, declared that "success and failure of a paper depends largely on the reporters." He advised honesty in all writings and urged continued hard work, promising his support to the school paper in its various activities. "There is nothing finer than having a reputation of reliability and dependability," were the closing words of Pres. Clausen's address.

Prof. H. M. Haug, M.A., Dean of Women, also addressed the gathering. "If the same factors and elements giving support would give the same per cent. of faith, sincerity, loyalty and earnestness as the College Cord Staff, there would be no need to worry about filling the residence for women," she said.

The newly appointed editor, Edward G. Neigh, was optimistic enough to look forward to a daily paper sometime in the future. He also added he expected the reporters to be "Johnny-on-the-spot" and not to sit around and look at the Editor until given an assignment.

Short speeches were also given by the retiring members of the staff. Miss Louise Twietmeyer, Hubert Casselman and Julius Neff.

us to forget the indispensable worth of these material agencies the spiritual forces we are so much concerned which will fall far short of exerting the influence we desire them to exert.

TASMINA

We met by elfin bower
In far-off Eastern clime.
'Twas in the still of even
With morning near its prime.

We strolled out in the moonlight
Where flows the Shalimar,
While in the sky's deep purple
There burned a single star.

How oft we had been coming
To this our sacred place!
How sad to leave forever
The sunshine of her face!

She was an Eastern maiden
And noted far in fame,
More fair than Moghra flowers
Tasmina was her name.

All heavy was the fragrance
Of jasmin-scented air,
That mingled with the perfume
Of blossoms in her hair.

Her cloak of shining silver
Outshone the sky's pale hue,
Her dainty feet were hidden
In sandals gold and blue.

Far-famed I said her beauty:
Her cheek revealed the flush
Of hearts in deep contentment
And love's young ardent blush.

Her hair all soft and scented
And eyebrows richly curved,
Revealed to me the rapture
In velvet depths preserved.

How fair and soft her fingers
With pink and slender tips!
How sweet the cadenced breathing
From softly curving lips!

The moonlight's tender kisses
Upon her open throat
Made pulses beat and quiver
Like lotus buds afloat.

We felt the hours fleeting
And pass us one by one,
As vales and hills were lighted
By morning's eager sun.

But when I spoke of parting
Her glances quickly fell,
None know her heart's deep sorrow
Those sands alone can tell.

Upon her full-blown bosom
I saw a ringlet lie,
Which heaved and swelled in motion
With every parting sigh.

As pale hands were caressing
From brimming eyes I caught
The deep-souled look of anguish
The secret of her thought.

Ah, why did I in leaving
From eyes once softly gay
In disregard and cruelty
Go steal those smiles away!

Now in that purple distance
Where palm-trees softly moan,
Where once she had been happy
She rests now all alone.

Yet I shall see forever
Her eyes still lustre-wet,
As they were at my parting
Ah! could I but forget!

How odd to think that music
On dulcimer when played
Could stir the soul to thinking
Of some fair Eastern maid!

How odd to think that really
You suffer such deep pains
When in your fancy dreaming
You hear those Eastern strains!

Such is the force of rhythm
When music tunes the heart,
When fragrance deep is blended
With fancy's subtle art.

—Earle Clare Shelley.

JUST REMEMBER

Before you say a word that stings,
Or rankles in some heart,
Before you toy with quarrellings
And from some old friend part,
Remember that a kindly word
Will all the trouble end
And that it's foolish and absurd
To banish a good friend.

Before you cloud the sky of love
With some unworthy deed,
Before you slay love's peaceful dove,
Or make a fond heart bleed,
Remember that you'll need some day
The love you lightly spurn
And that, though now you may be gay
You'll suffer in your turn.

Before you chide a simple child
Or cause a single tear
Before you're tempted or beguiled
At innocence to sneer
Think how much sunshine would be gone
But for the childlike mind.
And thank your stars for every one
To whom you can be kind.

Basketball Team Loses Last Game Of Season

College Quintet Defeated by K.-W.
Collegiate 31-16.

The College eagers, although playing desperately and leading for more than half of the game, were beaten in the final basketball game of the season against the K.-W. Collegiate by a score of 31-16. The game was played on Friday afternoon, Feb. 27, on the Collegiate floor.

Waterloo College started the scoring when Neeb scored a field basket. The Collegiate guards now began to check the College forwards quite heavily, Neeb receiving a penalty shot as a result. The first scorer for the Collegiate was Dinger. Both teams played very good combination throughout this period. The College, however, had the upper-hand throughout the first half, both in combination and in their defensive playing. As a result of this the College was ahead at the end of this period with a score of 8-7.

The second half turned out to be a sad one for the locals. The Collegians through the combination of Dinger, Campbell and Eggert scored one basket after another. The close guarding of Casselman and Jones, however, saved many baskets for the College. Little, Neeb, and Scherbarth, forwards for the College, played very good combination and passed quite accurately, but the checking of their opponents broke up the combination nearly everytime. The College team had very good team work, each player trying to help the other players to get the baskets.

The line-up:

K.-W. Collegiate: Dinger, Marsland, Campbell, Shantz, Bean, Eggert, Couch and Wunenberg.

Waterloo College: Little, Neeb, Scherbarth, Kruspe, Casselman, Jones and Alberti.

Discords

With swift, decided strokes, the artist painted in the colored clouds of the lovely sunset.

Presently he noticed an old man gazing sombrely at the result of his labors.

"Ah", said the painter, "perhaps you, too, love the sky pictures, my friend? Perhaps you have seen the lambent flame of dawn leaping across the livid east, the red-stained sulphurous islets floating in a lake of fire?"

"No" replied the old man, "I haven't—not since I signed the pledge."

"Can I marry your daughter?"

"Can you loan me twenty-five dollars?"

"Yes."

"Yes."

Science Prof. (explaining heat caused by friction): "If you rub your hand along the railing when you go down stairs, what do you get?"

Bill: "A dirty hand."

Rye, (working at Latin): "What does 'quaque' mean?"

Harry (brilliantly): "A duck."

Fred (reading from a play in English 34 class): "Kiss me!"

English Prof.: "We'll stop right there for to-day."

Village policeman: "This won't do. We've had too many Smiths around here. Give me your real name and be quick about it too."

Speeder: "Well, if you must know, it's W. Shakespeare."

Policeman: "That's better. You can't bluff a man like me with that 'Smith' stuff."

Verna: "Are you in favor of women taking part in public affairs?"

Harvey: "Well, it's all right if you really want the affairs to be public."

First old maid: "Which would you prefer in your future husband, wealth, ability or appearance?"

Second old maid: "Appearance, and the sooner the better."

Margery: "Mama, sister doesn't tell the truth."

Mother: "Why, Margery, how can you say such a thing?"

Margery: "Well, last night I heard her say, 'If you do that again I'll call Mama! He did it twice more and she didn't call you.'"
