Sophomores Present Novelty Program At Athenaeum Meeting

Mr. B. Hirons, Former Student, Tells of Experiences in South.

The Athenaeum Society held their meeting Thursday, March 17th, under the auspices of the Sophomore class.

After the business of the meeting had been transacted, President E. Harrison Perkins introduced Mr. Berardine Hirons, an ex-student of Waterloo College, who is now teaching music in the southern part of the United States. Mr. Hirons spoke a few words concerning his experiences down south, and of his reminiscences of Waterloo College, congratulating the college upon the addition of its co-eds.

With the dashing entry of the president of the Sophomore class, Mr. O. Alberti, the program began, commencing from the broadcasting studio of Station WAPS with announcer Harvey C. Goos at the microphone. He introduced the All-Fun quartet, composed of the

New Classics Professor

Mr. Oscar Ferdinand Bale has been secured as the new Classics Professor to enter upon his active duties as a member of the staff Sept., 1932. It has not been decided that he will be here for the summer session.

Mr. Bale is a graduate of Concordia College, with B.A. 1922; he pursued graduate study in Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., in 1923-1924; in 1924, 1925, 1926, he pursued Theology in Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo. He subsequently attended University of North Dakota, and the University of Michigan 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, where he graduated with M.A. in classics. He was a University Fellow at the University of Michigan 1929-1930. Mr. Bale speaks fluently English, Norse and German. He has his dissertation and his orals yet for his Ph.D. in Classics.

I have been assured by many educational authorities that we have a strong man to help students and staff in building the inner life of Waterloo College.

Waterloo Cagers Win Last Game Of Season With Huron College

Visitors Unable to Overcome Early Lead of Local Boys.

The basketball team finished its season with a decided win over Huron College, London, defeating them by a score of 35-15, when they played their last game at the Kitchener "Y", Saturday evening, March 19th.

Huron College in spite of frequent substitution seemed unable to overcome the lead piled up against them from the very beginning. The Waterloo team showed nice combination throughout the entire game and their shooting, too, was unusually accurate.

Neeb scored the first point of the game a few minutes after the opening whistle when he sank a foul shot. The ball was tossed up at centre, some accurate passing, and Neeb scored again. Huron seemed a bit dazed by this rapid play and they

Professor Spenceley Of Western Addresses Local Women's University Club

Club Discusses Granting of Scholarship to Student of local Collegiate.

The Women's University Club of Kitchener held its regular monthly meeting March 22nd. Among the more important matters discussed at the meeting was a Scholarship to be given to the girl in the K-W. Collegiate getting the highest marks in eight subjects of which English must be one. This scholarship will be given in cash and may be used towards tuition in any University or College. The value of the scholarship is fifty dollars.

The speaker for the afternoon was Professor Spenceley, a member of the faculty of English at the University of Western Ontario. His subject was "Our Mother Tongue and Some of its Ways". The speaker gave many examples of English words that have different pronunciations in various parts of the English speaking world.

After the meeting a delightful lunch was served.

Le Cercle Francais Plans Social Fete Cossman-Hayunga Discusses Missions

Guests from Western University and Local Collegiate Expected.

Home and Foreign Missions Outlined at Meeting.

The Cercle Francais will hold its next meeting in the form of Une Soirée Française on the night of Wednesday, April 6th. The event promises to be one of the highlights of the school-year and the various committees under the able direction of Professor E. C. Doherty and Miss E. S. Spohn are literally overdoing themselves in an effort to make this social a great success. The guests of honor will be the members of the local faculty, the faculty of Romance Languages and the executive of the Cercle Français of Western University, and the members of the French department of the K-W. Collegiate. All members of the society as well as those not taking French are cordially invited to attend.

The program will consist of a French one-act play, entitled Le Pâté et La Tarte. The play is based on an old French tableau and the scene is laid in mediæval Paris. Then as now, the unfortunate victims of a depression. Their attempts to satisfy the desires of the inner man are extremely ludicrous and can only be appreciated by seeing this play as it is portrayed by such lu

A good program was presented at the Cossman-Hayunga meeting held March 15th.

Mr. E. Laren presided. G. Durst, very efficiently took charge of the devotions. F. Mueller delivered a very interesting talk on Home Missions.

Mr. Mueller, who at present is carrying the responsibilities of a Mission Station, outlined some of his experiences. He also touched on other mission stations in Canada and gave some idea of their work. "The leaders of our missions," he stated, "lay emphasis on the principle that a Christian world depends upon a Christian country. Home missions cannot be separated from Foreign missions."

Miss A. Froats spoke on the missionary work done in Japan, giving an outline of the predominant characteristics of Foreign missions. She gave a brief review of the results of evangelistic efforts and the difficulties of the work.

Otto Reble spoke on African missions. Missionary work in that continent is divided into four distinct phases, he said. He also stressed the need of Christians in the non-Christianized land.

Date Of Preliminaries Of Public Speaking Contest Changed To April Fifth

Faculty made this Change in Consideration of Students' Vacation.

In order that those intending to participate in the preliminaries of the Public Speaking Contest might have their Easter vacation spoiled by having to prepare their speeches, the faculty changed the date of the preliminary hearing from March 29th, as had been previously announced, to April 5th.

A somewhat different method has been adopted this year, by which only those students who have reached a certain standard in their course are eligible to compete in the preliminaries. This method no doubt will increase the standard of the speeches considerably.

Although no students except those who are taking the public speaking courses have so far expressed their wish to enter the contest, it is expected that some of them will be in the preliminaries take place.

Students Also Affected. The present depression, which has come to include almost every sphere of human activity and to affect the active life of almost every individual, is gradually also encroaching the sphere of the student.

The average student, since he is really not taking an active part in life, no doubt feels that he should be spared from the depression which effects the wage-earning man. This seems logical enough but we know for a fact that it is no longer so.

The grants of many universities and other institutions have been greatly reduced, with the subsequent result that the tuition of the students has been raised.

Although some students might not be alarmed at this, those, who are working their way through university or college, have ample reason to worry, especially when we add to this the fact that it is no longer an easy matter to procure employment during the summer vacation.

It seems that the student is being called upon, more and more, to help bear the burdens of his country.

—W—

Broader Outlook For Students. Many of the differences which arise between the employer and employee, between the business man and laborer and between people in general, are due, in most cases, to some misunderstanding. The one fails to put himself in the place of the other; he has no idea of the conditions and circumstances under which the other lives. Much of this misunderstanding could be avoided if a broader outlook were obtained through experience and the most opportune time to get this experience is during the student days.

Although all that might be required of a student is that he become proficient in his particular calling or vocation, he should also try to expand his range of experience in order to see the viewpoint of his fellowmen so as to be in sympathy with them. The employer should know what it is like to stand at a machine nine hours a day, covered with grease and grime; the business man should realize that the money of the laborer is hard-earned; the minister of a country congregation should know what it means to stand under the scorching sun at haying time and should know the art of farming to some degree. To be in sympathy with the other fellow, we must know the conditions under which he lives.

The student who does not venture outside of his academic pursuits, will find, when he gets out into the world, that he is almost totally ignorant of how the other people are living. He will have nothing in common with them and is in danger of looking down upon them with some degree of contempt because he feels that they do not seem to understand him. Nobody has cause for having a swelled head; if there is anything that should be predominant in the deportment of a student, it should be his consideration for those less fortunate than he. This can only be obtained by a more cosmopolitan outlook on life.

If we were to analyse the situation, we would no doubt

Concords

The recent home and home basketball games between Waterloo and Huron Colleges have done much to strengthen the ties of friendship between the affiliated Colleges of Western University. The local boys were deeply impressed by the reception they received when they visited Huron College recently and expressed the hope that in the future more friendly games of such a kind can be arranged.

The sympathetic friendship of the Waterloo student, which, till now, has been confined more or less, to his fellow students, is being broadened by these friendly meetings to include students of other Colleges. Let us have more of them.

Besides the great number of students who were confined to their beds with the flu, several students were confined through illness of a more serious nature.

Herman Little was unable to attend lectures for a number of weeks but he has made rapid progress during the last week and his smiling face is seen again in the corridors of the College.

Carl Seltzer has been ordered to remain in bed for an indefinite length of time. Our sympathy goes out to Carl and we wish him a speedy recovery.

Several local students sported a rather good coat of tan when they returned from their Easter vacation and quite a number of other students were anxious to find out how it could be procured at this time of the year. But when they found out that it was caused from riding in a rumble seat for about three hundred miles, their enthusiasm waned.

The students who sacrificed sleep in order to finish their essays before the Easter vacation, caught up with their sleep during the holiday; the students who took their regular hours of sleep before Easter, caught up with their essays during the vacation. It evidently amounts to the same thing in the end.

come to the conclusion that practical experience is as good a teacher as any amount of books. No student should consider his education complete till he has had practical experience in different phases of human activities. His long summer vacations give him ample opportunities to work in a factory, on a farm, on the roads or wherever a job might be obtained. He will find that he can learn much by mingling with the class of people who do our manual labor. He will learn to look at matters from another man's viewpoint and be in deeper sympathy with him. He will become of greater service to his fellowmen and country.

Why Not Waterloo?

Here is a suggestion for those in charge of Interfaculty Basketball. Why not form a league next year and include Waterloo College? We are sure that an interesting series would be the result. There are seven entries which we can think of—Art, Meds, Premeds, Science, Business, Huron College and Waterloo College. The schedule could be arranged so that the Waterloo boys need only make three trips to London and we are sure it would be no hardship for the other teams to each make one trip to Waterloo.

Such an Interfaculty League is carried out by the University of Toronto, and O.A.C. is entered. It is 68 miles from Guelph to Toronto. It is 63 miles from London to Waterloo. How about it, boys?

The Huron College vs. Waterloo College game Saturday showed that the Waterloo boys have the material. It remains for us to try and get them in a league.—University of Western Ontario Gazette.

Two Too Many

After the perfunctory greetings attendant upon the arrival of Sampson and Grant had been duly accomplished, James got down to business.

"The situation," he said, settling back in his chair and joining the tips of his fingers in the true Sherlockian manner, "as I understand it, is this; you are engaged to two girls, from both of whom you wish to free yourself."

"Exactly," agreed Ram. "Two fiancées is just two too many for me."

"Faith," went on James, "is, I believe, the kind of girl whom a repulse, refusal, or jilt would not affect."

"Absolutely," assented Ram again. "Giving Faith the gate would make her moon over me all the more."

"Moon?"

"Moon!"

"Very well. Faith, I understand, is also opposed to any kind of intoxicating beverages."

"Opposed is the word. Strongly opposed. 'Lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine' and so on. So far I've been able to keep her in the dark about it—er, speaking metaphorically, of course."

"Of course. Well, then, here's your plan. Take Janet to the military ball at the university, and arrange that Rita is there also. Rita, you have told me, is extremely jealous and would drop you immediately if she saw you at a dance with another girl. By becoming a trifle intoxicated at this dance, you will be able to kill two birds with one stone. Rita will be jealous and will withdraw from the field, while Faith will become disgusted and will follow Rita's example. There."

James leaned back beaming, with the air of a Napoleon after the successful planning of a strategic campaign.

Erasmus, however, running true to form, threw the well-known monkey wrench into the works.

"I'm not going to take Faith to the military ball," he stated stubbornly.

"Oh, I see. You're taking Rita?"

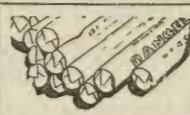

"No, not Rita. Somebody else. Girl I met last week. Lady named Lou. Rita'll be out of town that week anyway."

Foster made his first remark since he had entered.

"I suppose after the dance you'll be engaged to the lady that's known as Lou?"

A sudden happy smile lit up Ram's face. He had the look of one who has been smitten with an inspiration.

"Not a bad idea," he declared. "Not a bad idea at all. Ripe, in fact." But his countenance clouded again; the beam vanished. "No," he went on sadly. "It cannot be. I already have two too many."

Cordite

If those interflat games were basketball, it was a kind of basketball we never heard of before.

We don't know whether the combatants were playing by Marquis of Queensbury rules or by a combination of the Lenz and Culbertson bridge systems.

One of the Seminarians showed his Irish blood by wearing a bright orange tie on St. Patrick's day.

Speaking of orange brings to mind Irving Berlin's atrocious rhyme on that word. Berlin is known for his ability to rhyme difficult words. Someone once made a bet with him that he couldn't rhyme orange. His reply was something like this:

"My brother and I stole a cellar door;

Brother Bill was eating an orange. I stole the rear hinge, and Bill stole the fore hinge."

That is almost as bad as some of the rhymes in the versified reply to the Outsiders' basketball challenge.

Orange you agreed?

"Suppose," interjected Sampson acidly, "Suppose we get back to business and stop drivelling. If you're not taking Faith to the dance, can you guarantee to get her down to the city some time soon, when Rita's in town?"

"Yes, I think so."

"Very well. I won't tell you my plan as re-arranged, because you'd be liable to spoil it again. Well, I must be getting along now. So long, John—see you again before we leave for school. Come on, Foss."

Two weeks of hard work after the Easter vacation was over produced in me a desire for some measure of relaxation. Accordingly, seizing an opportunity for a free motor trip to the city in whose university Erasmus and his guards were immured, I dropped into their room in the college residence late one Saturday afternoon.

I had received no word from them since the vacation, and I was naturally curious as to the outcome of the tangle into which Ram's philanderings had landed him.

Ram was alone in the room when I arrived, and was apparently preparing to leave for other fields himself.

After the usual handshaking and its concomitants, I came to the subject which was uppermost in my mind.

"Did Jim extricate you?" I asked.

"I don't know whether Jim did or not," Ram replied. He went on to tell me anything. But I'm certainly extri-

Faith came down with her mother for a day of shopping, and two days after I got letters from her and Rita telling me that all was ended, that our vows were broken, our hearts sundered, and that I could go jump in the lake. "Well," I said, settling myself in a chair after Ram had left, "I'm waiting for an explanation of the whole business."

"It was very simple," Jim replied. "I got Ram to make an appointment with Faith for lunch when she was in town. Meanwhile I got in touch with Rita. I told her that Ram's sister was in town, and was having lunch with him at a certain time, and that Ram wanted her to meet her."

"Wanted which to meet whom?"

"Wanted Rita to meet his sister. I also—er—prevaricated in saying that Ram's sister was trying hard to cure Ram of his bibulous tendencies—that it was her sole mission in life—and that she was finding the task difficult and needed encouragement and sympathy. I myself offered to escort Rita to the lunch in question."

"When we got there, Faith was waiting. I had the staff of the place primed with a few judicious tips, and at the correct moment a phony message was handed to me stating that Ram was unavoidably detained at the University and would not be present."

"A telephone message, did you say?"

"No. Phony. Fake. Anyway, the three of us proceeded to begin lunching, and just as we had begun restoring our wasted tissues, I gave the waiter a signal to call me to the phone. I collected my hat and coat, sneaked out, and left them there."

"The next development was when Ram got letters from both of them definitely calling off all hymeneal plans and arrangements."

"I went down to see Rita last night to discover details concerning the lunch. First of all, of course, I assured her that Ram had told me the other woman was his sister. Rita swallowed that nicely. Then she described the lunch. She had begun by sympathizing with Faith, whom she believed of course was Ram's sister, over her attempts to get Ram to sign the pledge. Faith wondered what Rita was talking about. As neither could understand the other's viewpoint, and each wondered what the devil the other was talking about, the atmosphere waxed warmer and warmer, so finally when it sank into Rita's skull that Faith was Ram's sweetheart, and into Faith's skull that Ram was a confirmed alcoholic, both women just about blew up. Ram was naturally the object of their spleen, and hence the letters of finality."

"Nice work," I said, congratulating Jim. "Very nice work, indeed. But what on earth is that package you're untying? And why did you go to all that trouble to get Ram out of this mess? I wouldn't have. He got himself into it."

Jim finally finished unwrapping the parcel and disclosed a large, framed photograph of a girl, which he reverently set on his dressing

Re-enforced College Team
Eliminated In First GameGreat Number of Penalties Mar
Chance of Defeating Opponents.

Monday night, March 21st, saw the final curtain rung down on the hockey season in so far as Waterloo College was concerned, when the team absorbed a 2-0 defeat at the hands of the Cluett-Peabody aggregation of puck-chasers. The teams were in pursuit of the Hockey Championship of Waterloo County, which is determined by the elimination process. Both teams were very evenly matched and the Cluett's only won because they were able to take advantage of their scoring opportunities. For the College Dick Ruch was the most outstanding, his body-checking being a feature of the game. The College was strengthened by the addition of Beam in goal and three players from the Financial League.

The first period was not productive of very good hockey. Both teams checked closely with the result that there was little or no combination displayed. Neither team had many good scoring chances.

The second period opened with the College pressing hard. The Lawson-Elfert-Ault forward line had the Cluetts bottled up in their end of the rink for minutes at a time. During this period the College had two golden chances to score, once when Reiber was right in but missed the open net, and again when "Mac" Ault was in close but failed to lift the puck off the ice. Towards the end of the period Pontin for the Cluetts opened the scoring from a scramble in front of the Waterloo net. Gomann was serving a penalty at the time. The College had the best of the play during this period but they were unable to make use of their opportunities, particularly when the Cluetts were short-handed.

In the third period the Cluetts had the best of the play. Vrooman was right in, but Beam came out to save smartly. The College marred their effectiveness with too many penalties and the result was that they were forced to stay on the defensive most of the period. The College had two men in the penalty box when the last goal was scored. Sevenpiper got it, when he split the defence and went right in on Beam giving him no chance to save.

The teams: Cluett-Peabody: goal, Gerth; defense, Hewitt, Sevenpiper; centre, Kroph; wings, Hoch, Vrooman; subs., Kechne, Kanipin, Pontin, Giller.

Waterloo College: goal, Beam; defense, Gomann, Ruch; centre, Bailey; wings, Schmidt, Reiber; subs., Lawson, Elfert, Ault.

Waterloo Cagers Lose By 1 Point In Game With Huron Team

Lead with One Minute to Play, but Lose out in End.

The College quintett was vanquished by a heart-breaking defeat of 17-16, in the first of inter-college exhibition games, by the Huron College team on Saturday evening, March 12th, at the Technical School gymnasium, London. Both Huron and Waterloo Colleges are affiliated colleges of Western and thus the game was attended by enthusiastic students.

As the score will indicate, the game was nip and tuck throughout. Alberti counted for the College, when he scored a penalty shot. Ruch followed closely with a field basket. Huron retaliated scoring several baskets in quick succession. Two minutes before half time the score stood 9-7, in favor of Huron, when Scherbarth scored a long shot, thus bringing the game to a deadlock.

The second half again saw Waterloo taking the lead, with Ruch, Casselman and Reble each scoring a basket. Huron, however, scored six points and the game stood 16-15 in favor of Waterloo with but a minute and a quarter to go. Sickers scored the deciding basket, when he made

Sport Comments

In a recent issue of the University of Western Ontario Gazette appeared an article regarding an Inter-faculty Basketball League, making it possible for Waterloo College to be included. Such a league would bring Waterloo College in closer contact with the University and would put Waterloo College on the map. Western seems to think that we have the material for such a league. Should we try it?

Is poetry linked up with sports a sign of advanced education? Recently a challenge garbed in rhyming verse was posted. The challenge received a reply in the same kind of verse.

The hockey team may have been eliminated from the Waterloo County League, but this does not mean that they did not have the ability for such a league. The entry in this league gave the players some experience in some fast hockey. The players were all quite satisfied.

Manager Ault seemed to be a proud daddy, when his fourth floor basketball team went through for their second win. Mac apparently has the ability to manage and lead a team on to victory. Positions as managers of the various athletic teams for the coming term will probably soon be open. Will Mac fill one of them?

Unknown ability was brought forth at a recent hockey game. Lindy Lawson proved that he was capable of stopping the puck. He played goalie for the College in the game against the Bank of Commerce.

a long shot, thus winning the game for Huron. The teams:—

Huron College: A. Lorrimer, Awde, Duncan, S. Lorrimer, N. Sickers, Tweedie, J. Stott, Graham and Hill.

Waterloo College: Reble, Scherbarth, Little, Ruch, Alberti, Casselman.

College Hockey Team Wins Last Encounter

Game Shortened to Two Periods for Lack of Time.

The final exhibition tilt of the College hockey team brought home another victory when they defeated the Bank of Commerce by a score of 2-1 on Monday evening, March 14th, at the Kitchener auditorium. Due to a loss of time the game was shortened to two periods. The bankers turned out a strong team but not quite strong enough to vanquish the students.

The College began the scoring when Knauff slipped the puck past Mackenzie after a scramble in front of the bankers' goal. Ault and Elfert played good combination during this period and were often in on the goalie, only to miss the net. Gomann and Ruch checked the opponents wonderfully, breaking up the strong combination of Corbeau, Gusse and Pickering. Besides being a splendid exhibition of fast hockey the rest of this period was uneventful.

Soon after the gong started the final period, Dubrick netted for the bankers after making a lone rush, thus tying the score. For about fifteen minutes the game was at a deadlock, excellent combination was broken up by strong defensive playing. Finally, however, the students broke through and Knauff scored the second point for the College. Lawson, who played in the College goal for the first time, stopped many hard shots and thus saved the game for his team.

Line-up: Bank of Commerce: goal, Mackenzie; defense, Bridge and Kimmel; centre, Corbeau; wings, Gusse, Pickering; alternates, Dubrick, Rempel.

Waterloo College: goal, Lawson; defense, Gomann, Ruch; centre, Elfert; wings, Ault, Knauff; alternate, Schroeder.

Referee, Fisher.

Seminary Notes

Easter lilies and multi-colored eggs grow up regularly once every year in our homes. What of the spirit of the risen Lord? Does it register corresponding growth in our hearts? The Easter season is a season set apart to contemplate the meaning of that great fact, a season in which we must strive to realize that the risen Lord is ever present and driving us to ever-renewed missionary activity.

Student engagements for preaching have been recorded as follows: E. Rusza at Kitchener on Good Friday, communion services at Hamilton and Kitchener on Easter Sunday, at Welland on April 3rd; W. Goos, at Preston on Easter Sunday, at the evening service, at Owen Sound on April 3rd; H. Nielson at Unionville-Sherwood on April 3rd.

Dr. Little assisted at communion and preached the sermon at the evening service in New Dundee on Easter Sunday.

President Clausen addressed a joint meeting of the young people of the Lutheran, United and Evangelical congregations in Waterloo on March 21st. He also spoke at a reception of all the Lutheran girls in the K-W. Collegiate Institute held for them at St. John's Parish Hall in Waterloo.

SOPHOMORES PRESENT

Messrs. Walter Hamm, Fred Haak, Harvey Goos and Richard Ruch.

A mock League of Nations was held, with the masculine section of the Sophomore class holding full sway. Homer Berner, Walter Hamm, Otto Reble, Richard Ruch, Herman Schenbarth, Fred Haak, Harry Alberti, Lynden Lawsen and Harvey Goss transacted the business of the world-at-large and the program was continued by Professor Macanaw (Herman Scherbarth) who answered several letters from Waterloo College regarding affairs of the heart and mind. After a selection by the quartet, little Patsy O'Rourke (Alethea Johnson) who recited a little Irish poem was introduced by the announcer. She was followed by Annie Rooney (Mabel Hahn) who recited "How a Man Received His Three Score and Ten years".

"Wurzel Flummery", a one act play was presented by the following sophomores:

Mrs. Crawshaw, Audrey Froats, Robert Crawshaw, Lynden Lawson; Richard Merriton, Richard Ruch; Viola Crawshaw, Jean Brent; Dennis Clifton, Otto Reble.

Co-ed Gossip

The co-eds have been very quiet since their return. There have been no little get-togethers to talk over the doings of the holidays, so it has been impossible to do any eavesdropping for the purpose of garnering news. Instead of columns and columns of news, there will be only one—maybe.

Most of the co-eds seem to be refreshed by their vacation, but some of them are taking on serious and grave faces in view of the hard times ahead. What hard times, did you ask. Why, the exams, of course.

Even the seniors look more serious than before—if that is possible.

All the co-eds spent the holidays at their respective homes, and how glad they were to be able to go. Was the bunny good to them?

Some of the co-eds enjoyed some snow-shoeing and tobogganing the week before Easter.

Now that the Lenten season is over, the co-eds will be enjoying more social activities.

The co-eds are branching out into new lines of work. One of them undertook to manage a boys basketball team. By the way, the team played some good basketball even if it did lose the game.

Local Boys Given Fine Reception On Visit

Considerable hospitality was interchanged by Huron and Waterloo Colleges, when they met to play exhibition games of basketball first at London then at Waterloo.

At London the Waterloo boys were wonderfully entertained by a supper and a get-together lunch after the game. Dean Craig gave an address of welcome to Waterloo College and Prof. C. Cameron Waller gave the history of Huron College. H. Alberti replied, giving a short talk on Waterloo College basketball team.

When Huron came to Waterloo they were entertained in the student's rooms, later they had dinner together in the college dining hall and also had lunch together after the game. Manager Buley, who was unable to attend the game at London, gave a short address, thanking the College team for their hospitality.

SINGING

Singing to souls that need soothing,—
Singing, the bard can heal;
Singing softly,
Singing slowly,
Singing sweetly

Singing of sands that are golden and glowing,
Chanting of caravans stately and slow,
Dreaming of streams that are blue in the noonday—
Silvern and still 'neath the pale lunar glow;

Singing of seas that are silently smiling,
Murm'ring of shores where the dulcimers chime;
Singing of Beauty and love and things lovely,
Lilting with lutes that are laughing at Time;

Singing a song that is soothing,
Singing a song that heals;
Singing softly,
Singing slowly,
Singing sweetly. . . .

Fourth Floor Victorious In Hard Basketball Tussle

Defeats Third Floor by Large Margin in Friendly Encounter.

Manager Ault, by threats, bribes and valuable instructions, coached his team of men from the upper floor through to a glorious victory over the exclusive and dignified third. It was a rather rough game so that the referee was forced to be blind to all but very obvious fouls or both teams would have been sadly depleted.

The upper floor had one advantage. Their forwards were all regulars on the college team who were accustomed to play combination. They made the most of their opportunities. Ruch especially was accurate in his shots, making several lone rushes through the defence to net 14 points for his team. Alberti made one basket, Reble two and Lawson one foul to give their team the magnificent grand total of 21. Gomann's charging gained yards several times. Reble for some reason seemed afraid to try for a basket and usually passed to Ruch.

On the other side Neff played a good game and bucked the line several times to good advantage. Casselman dribbled around centre ice quite often, waiting for a chance to break through the defense, but the line held. Only five times did they succeed in sinking baskets. Knauff made two, Neff one, Mueller one,

This Week's Anecdote

Lawrence Mervil Tibbett, the story goes, was driving from New York to California. In a western state, on a bad road and with night coming on, his motor balked. The only habitation in sight was a farmhouse. Mr. Tibbett decided he was not going to do any repair work in the dark, so he walked to the house and asked the farmer if he could take care of him for the night. The man said he could, got out a team, and towed the stalled car to the barn. As they were going towards the house, the farmer asked his guest's name. He was told it was Tibbett.

"That's queer," said the farmer, "I have a talking machine and some of my favorite records are made by a fellow named Lawrence Tibbett."

"Yes," said the singer. "I made those records. I'm Lawrence Tibbett."

"Oh yeah?" said the farmer. "Well, I'm Amos and Andy, and Ma, before she retired, was Jenny Lind." So the thoroughly annoyed Mr. Tibbett spent a large part of the evening singing some of his own songs, in competition with the talking machine in order to identify himself.

—Toronto Star Weekly.

Casselman one field goal and two fouls, so that at the end of the game their score was a mere 12.

Teams: Upper: Ruch, F. Alberti, Reble, Gomann, Lawson.

Third: Neff, Scherbarth, Knauff, Mueller, Nolting, Casselman, H. Alberti, Pauli, Dietsche.

Local Student Slumbers As He Passes Destination

Will not say if He Enjoyed Mid-night Walk on Country Road.

Although for many students the Easter vacation is a time in which they get caught up with their sleep, they usually wait till they get home before they allow their wearied brain to sink into oblivion. One local student could not wait that long.

Embarking on the train late Thursday afternoon, he was soon lulled to sleep by the monotonous clatter of the wheels as they sped over the rails. When he awoke day had turned to night and on inquiring, found that he had already passed his destination. Fortunately the next station was only six miles from his home and the cold night air kept him awake as he plodded along the country road at the hour of midnight, carrying a heavy suit-case.

Determined to get back to College in good time, the same student left home early Monday afternoon. After riding on the train for several miles, he was told by the conductor that he could not make train connections and would have to remain in Palmerston over-night. Evidently thinking that his bed at home would be much more comfortable than the waiting-room benches, he got off the train at the next stop and again plodded homewards.

When asked how he enjoyed his Easter vacation, he refused to commit himself.

began to check harder. Reble scored another foul shot and a few moments later nonchalantly tossed the ball over his shoulder for an unexpected basket. Casselman had been playing strictly defensive up to this time, but now he broke away, dribbled the length of the floor and scored. Alberti sank a magnificent long shot, Neeb made two more baskets and Ruch two to bring Waterloo's score at half time to 20.

In this half Huron only scored three baskets, Lickers, A. Lorriman and Graham each having one to their credit.

The second half was not nearly as one-sided, but Waterloo's accurate shooting made their score mount more rapidly. Ruch was decidedly the star, since in this half he scored eleven points for Waterloo. Neeb added two points, Scherbarth and Alberti each one point, making the
