E. G. Neigh Delivers Valedictory, C. J. Seltzer Salutatory Address.

The annual Class and Prize Day of Waterloo College was held in the gymnasium on the evening of May 25th. Dean W. C. Froats presided and Rev. E. Lawson of Mount Forest delivered a few brief remarks to this year's graduating class. Edward Neigh and C. J. Seltzer gave the valedictory and salutatory addresses respectively. Awards in the form of letters, prizes, medals and scholarships were presented.

Dean Froats acting in the capacity of chairman based his remarks on the great importance of education. "We must maintain our standards and continually strive for something better," he said. "The graduates must keep moving and advance their positions in this world of ours."

Rev. Lawson said he was glad to express a word of appreciation in behalf of Waterloo College and its achievements. The College com-

Sincere Wishes For the Future. For two years Waterloo College has had the services of Miss Eleanor Doherty as Assistant Professor of English and French. Her work in these departments has been brilliant, and the students who were fortunate enough to take lectures under her, will hold them in memory long, perhaps not the substance but certainly the fascinating style. However, her abilities are not confined to academic work. Her experience and skill in dramatic work is considerable and she has been very generous with her time and energy in this field of College activity. The success which was enjoyed by the annual play two years ago, "You Never Can Tell," was very largely due to her interpretation as director of the same. This year likewise as director of the play, "The Trail of the Conestoga", she guided the most successful dramatic venture that the College has ever undertaken. Due to her untiring efforts also "Le Cercle Francais" had an energetic and interesting program throughout the year, in which was included the presentation of a French play. Needless to say, the success of this venture also was entirely due to Miss Doherty's direction. As she leaves us now to pursue further studies at Radcliffe College, though we regret her departure, we follow her with sincere wishes for her future career.

Farewell, And Auf Wiedersehen. The time has come that we must part, graduates of 1932, and parting brings its sorrows. For the last year we still were happy together in work and play; little did we realize that soon we would have to part. But as the day of your graduation approached, the realization of our parting came upon us and we fully began to realize what your friendship meant to us. To us who remain behind, you have been like big brothers and sisters. We have watched your activities closely; your joys have been our joys, your troubles our troubles, your endeavours our endeavours. In all College activities, especially the extra-curricular, we have tried to co-operate with you; you the leaders, we the humble followers. Your experience and guidance has taught us much.

The responsibilities which a year ago were placed upon your shoulders by the Class '31, you have now transferred to ours. Your splendid achievements throughout the last year and the friendship you have stimulated are ample proof that you have played your part well. May we likewise play our part in the coming year!

The time has come that we must part; we bid you a fond farewell. You are going out to take your place in the ranks of men; we must linger awhile longer. And although we soon shall join you, it will not be the same as now, for our different walks in life may carry us far apart. Nevertheless, our friendship formed at college and the spirit of our Alma Mater shall ever hold us together by its bond. Farewell, and "Auf Wiedersehen."

Concords

Now that Convocation Week activities are over, how about a well-earned rest.

The seniors seemed to have a "whale" of a time during Convocation Week, the juniors showed some life, but the sophomores and freshmen were entirely inactive.

It's one thing after another. Now that the worries of examinations are over, we have to worry about a job for the summer vacation.

Fred Goos paid us a visit the other day. If it hadn't been for his familiar smile, we would never have recognized him. Cut down on the vitamins, Fred!

Too bad that the rain had to spoil the college picnic. Fortunately it did not begin till the crowd had gathered and the best was made of it. The annual picnic is always the last opportunity for both students and professors to get together at the end of the year, so surely the weatherman might give us a nice day for it.

We rejoice with President Clausen on his having received his Doctor of Divinity degree from Hartwick Seminary. Congratulations!

The dormitory almost sounded like a factory during the last few days when the boys were packing their books into boxes. It must have been a dreary time for those who were packing up never to return. We imagine that many a fond memory is stored with their books.

Several students showed that they had a soft spot in their heart. After watching the janitor sweating under the hot afternoon sun, shoving the lawn-mower over the back campus, they went out after supper one evening and mowed the rest of the campares very favourably with other universities in all its endeavours since it is so thorough and industrious in its work. The speaker commended the work of the institution during the past year and the ability and efficiency of its head, Dean Froats. The young people of to-day must be forward-looking because there is a call coming to the youth of the age and it is up to them to avail themselves of every opportunity.

The keynotes of the valedictory delivered by Edward Neigh were freedom and regret. The graduates spent four long years at Waterloo and with the closing of school and the completion of examinations obtained freedom. Now, however, since they must leave Waterloo the feeling of regret is predominant and it is difficult to say farewell. The enjoyment of studies was due mostly to individual contact between student and professor. In leaving the college, friendship, athletics and literary activities would be left behind. Mr. Neigh concluded his remarks with the statement: "We are simply saying farewell, not good-bye."

In his salutatory, Mr. Seltzer particularly addressed the Class '33. "The Class '32 is standing on the door-step of a new world. We had endeavoured to do everything possible for Waterloo College during our sojourn here. We are turning our steps into wider fields to take up new work." In transferring the gown to G. R. Casselman of the Class '33, Mr. Seltzer trusted that he would carry on.

DR. A. O. POTTER

European Secretary of Rotary International and former dean of Waterloo College, who addressed the Alumni Association at a banquet held in Nicholson's Inn, Blair.

Dr. Potter Addresses Alumni Association At Annual Banquet

Urges Greater Co-operation Among Nations Of To-day.

The Alumni Association of Waterloo College held their annual meeting at Nicholson's Inn, Blair, on Saturday, May 28th. Dr. Alexander O. Potter, European Secretary of Rotary International was the guest speaker.

In opening his address Dr. Potter noted with pleasure the great progress which Waterloo College has made, particularly in the increased prestige which the College enjoys. It was the duty of the Alumni, he said, to do their best to continue this progress.

Continuing his address, Dr. Potter stated that the great need of the world at the present day is for international co-operation. Most people throughout the world consider that the international situation is very dangerously attenuated, and the idea is spreading continually. As Canadians, we must do our part in international co-operation. In doing this, we must not tell other nations what to do, but we must tell Canadians what to do, he said. The world has become very small through swift transportation and facility of communication. The speaker noted, however, that in spite of this the various national groups are isolating themselves more and more through customs, policies, trade regulations and mutual intellectual non-recognition. This isolation is so highly organized that a great collapse is imminent. The danger in the background is Communism. The danger is not that Communism will possibly be successful, the speaker said, but that our system is a failure. The trouble is that we haven't learned

Congratulations to the co-eds of the Senior Class. After four years of strenuous work, interspersed with some jolly good times, they have now reaped their reward. We wish them all success in their new endeavours and know they will be long remembered in the annals of Waterloo College.

With what a relief the co-eds welcomed Convocation Week. After the drudgery of the two weeks of exams, the girls were elated to think they had a week in which "to let loose."

It has been a matter of speculation, after hearing a few remarks made around the College halls, as to just how much work was accomplished during "dead" week. Some of the co-eds had a pretty good time that week.

Although the co-eds made a pretty good showing at the recent meet held at the Y.M.C.A., we know they could have done better if it had been held at any other time than during exam time.

Everybody had a good time at the picnic held Thursday, May 26th, at Swastika. Some of the girls took advantage of the bathing facilities, others went canoeing and some enjoyed the baseball.

What was the attraction at Puslinch? A couple of the co-eds industriously hiked to Puslinch, only to get wet through in a storm.

However, in spite of cloud-bursts, thundering and lightning, the co-eds declare they had a marvellous time, not forgetting the lunch.

It is to be hoped all the co-eds will gather again next September, plus a large number of newcomers. Each one must remember that in the step-up, she is taking up more responsibility, not only for herself, but in honor of the College.

The co-eds wish to express their deepest sympathy to Miss Alice Slemon in her recent bereavement.

the need of international co-operation.

The Alumni, in the various professions which they have taken up, are moulders of public opinion. There are four questions which each of them must ask himself, said Dr. Potter. First, what barriers does our country place in the way of international intercourse, by way of intellectual restriction? Secondly, what reasons can be found for these international barriers? Thirdly,

Last Season's Sport Activities Reviewed

To all indications the Waterloo College rugby season next year should be more successful than any season has been so far. Mr. Jack Hemphill, who has coached the purple and gold gridders for the past two years, has again been engaged as coach for next year, and if the team continues to improve as favorably as it has in the last two years, it should win some real recognition. Mr. E. Gomann, one of the most enthusiastic of rugby players at the College will manage the team next season. With these two men at the head there is no doubt but that the team will make rapid strides towards excellence and recognition.

Plans are now under way for the organization of a league which includes the University of Western Ontario, the Ontario Agricultural College, McMaster University and Waterloo College. The organization of this league will inaugurate a new era in the Waterloo College rugby activities, since nothing but exhibition games have been played in the last few years. Not only will it give the local squad more recognition, but the interest in the game will be still more lively than it has been, and that was not a little. In fact, it is doubtful whether any game here creates as much interest and enthusiasm among the players and spectators as rugby does.

BASKETBALL

Basketball aspirants are looking forward to the coming season in the fall. The past season was not a success as far as victories were concerned but it gave the team experience with strong opposition in the O.A.B.A. league. Victories in the Church League, beginning in fall, were almost impossible since some of the members of the team played rugby in the afternoon just before the basketball games. Although the team lost most of the games in both these leagues, they did not give up hope. They turned out to practice faithfully each week and played their hardest in the games. A team that goes down fighting every inch of the way has no reason to be ashamed of its losses.

The coming season will bring with it better chances of a winning team. Most of the boys who played this year, will be back again in fall. Then too, the possibility of a definite arrangement between the rugby and basketball managements, may eliminate the conflicts of practices and games on the same days.

Besides these two possibilities, a league will be formed with Western University and its various faculties or its affiliated colleges. Either league would have teams of about the same strength as Waterloo College, giving a better chance of turning out a winning team here.

No definite move has been made in regard to a girls' team. If enough enthusiasts turn out at the beginning of the season, a good team can be brought against the various girls' teams in the vicinity.

A bigger and better basketball season greets us as we look ahead to the coming term in fall. It remains with those concerned to make it the best seen so far at Waterloo College.

HOCKEY

Hockey was again revived at Waterloo College last winter after a lapse of two years. The weather was not favourable for natural ice, but the team, nevertheless enjoyed a very successful season, playing all games at the Kitchener auditorium. A total of ten games was played with various teams in the Twin City. Of this number the College won four and tied three. This is a record of which the team may be proud. Ardent followers of the winter pastime expressed the belief that this year's team was superior to the one of two years ago. This is indeed a commendable fact because the team played all winter without the assistance of a coach. Co-operation and unselfishness were the prime factors which aided the team greatly in compiling such a fine record.

Ernie Gomann managed the team and also played right defence. Between the goal posts we had Gordier who was undaunted and made many brilliant saves. Ruch was the flashy left defenceman, noted for his heavy body-checking and sudden bursts of speed. Ault, Elfert and Knauff comprised the forward line. Ault selfish at times, played centre and scored the largest number of goals for the team. Elfert, a fast wingman, laid many perfect passes on Ault's stick. Knauff, ever cool and calm, always played a steady game. The substitutes included H. Casselman, H. Little, Schroeder, Saddler and Lawson.

In case a few more hockey players are enrolled in the College next Fall, the team may be entered in the Senior Twin City League. The competition will be keen, to be sure, but if the members of the team play as consistently and co-operate to as great an extent as they did last year, we may safely say that Waterloo College will shortly become known in the hockey world.

upon the threshold of action—action coming after knowledge. Back of the training at College was a golden thread of religious truth.

Taking as his text Phil. 3: 20—"we are a colony of heaven"—Rev. Schmoyer proceeded to enlarge on the thoughts contained in that passage. "Baccalaureate day calls you to a high adventure across the old frontier. Knowledge must be co-ordinative with faith; without faith knowledge is destructive." Abraham was cited as showing great faith when he achieved possession of the Promised Land. "Thus, we must never fail to realize that without that bent of mind inspired by Christ there could never have been any scientific facts as we know them to-day. Faith brings truth." With custom and tradition, it is "to teach us what to expect—to anticipate what may occur. This is the school of experience where every kind of defeat will be seen. The graduating student then becomes another Columbus or Abraham.

"The graduating student is challenged to cross over from the old sphere into the new spiritual sphere—to enter into the unredeemed areas of life. He must go into the fields of industry where great economic problems have to be solved. As a colonist he must also do his share in replacing rare hatred with the spirit of universal brotherhood and endeavour to bring about the proper relationship between the nations.

"The adventure would be with the Son of man, the Pioneer of Life. Christ is the Leader and Guide. Peter spoke of Him as the Pioneer of Life—"I am come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly". Jesus could say that whereas great men such as Confucius could not. You are not to be transformed by the world, but you are to transform the world. Colonists of heaven must work for the Kingdom of Heaven. You are to redeem the areas of life—go from the old sphere into the new sphere as the colonists of heaven." Mr. Schmoyer concluded his address to the graduating class by saying that all one's energy should be exerted and put into use for God and for Christ. There is no joy like that which comes with the realization of having made sacrifices in following the Lord of Life.

Rain Spoils Mass Picnic

Pouring rain did not dampen the spirits of some fifty students of Waterloo College, although it did somewhat dampen their clothes—quite perceptibly.

Swimming was enjoyed by most of the students, while canoeing played an important part in the sports of the afternoon.

A fine exhibition of softball was given by several members of the fairer sex. However, old man rain took orders from no one, and rudely interrupted a most exciting game. Horseshoes, too, were prominent in the schedule.

Lunch was served in the pavilion by a committee which surely provided plenty of ambrosia and nectar for hungry individuals, who literally devoured everything placed before them.

Arrangements for the picnic were in the hands of the executives of the classes who are to be congratulated for a most enjoyable afternoon of fun.

Christ, but to preach Christ," the speaker told the graduates.

"Young ministers are often pitted when they go out into the world. Their means are not sufficient for good living," the speaker said. "Reserve your pity for others; men who are guiding the destinies of Nations, not they who are serving Jesus Christ in his kingdom. Think rather of the Master whom they serve and the message they bring. Congratulate them, envy them for their opportunities."

Rev. Sterz spoke of the responsibilities of young ministers going out to preach the gospel; they are to bring more, by the preaching of the Gospel, to Christ. "You, the graduates, as you look up to the pre-em-nence of Christ, remember that His guidance is a big thing. As He touches your daily things you will appreciate it; you will enjoy it.

"Let us seek to understand the contribution we are to make in saving souls by preaching Christ Jesus, the pre-eminent Master. He is in and through all things and yet above all things. He is the means, the bond that holds the universe together.

"That the love of Christ is lacking is demonstrated by the assassinations, crimes, divorces now prevalent," the pastor continued. "You are challenged to restore the love of Christ, to bring healing to the nation."

President Clausen presented the following prizes: Herbert Kohls Memorial Prize, for best general standing: won by Harold Nielsen.

Rev. Maeder Memorial scholarship, provided by the Women's Missionary Society of Morrisburg Lutheran Church, won by Arthur Buehlow.

Women's Missionary Society of the Canada Synod scholarship prize, awarded to Walter Goos of Preston.

Rev. Grotke prize for the best student in homiletics, won by Arthur Buehlow.

could these barriers be removed without endangering the cultural, social and industrial life of the country? Finally, what can I do as a citizen of the country to lower the barriers in this country. Each individual, wherever he is, can direct his own thoughts and actions, and also the thoughts and actions of others in such a way that the threatening collapse of our civilization can be avoided.

Following Dr. Potter's address, a vote of thanks was given to him. The graduating class of 1932 was then formally admitted to the association. The minutes of the last meeting showed almost a doubled attendance at the banquet this year, 34 being present.

In the president's report, it was noted that the return of two former associate members in the person of Mr. Breithaupt and Rev. A. Gordier to the College, and their present admission as members, showed how the appeal of the College is growing. The president also noted that a special alumni issue of the College Cord was printed in January. He also suggested to aid the college, in the form of a scholarship, of equipment, of endowment or of athletic prize.

The result of the elections showed the following slate of officers for the coming year: president, Louis Hagey; vice-president, John Herbert; secretary-treasurer, Louise Twietmeyer; corresponding secretary, Harold Ruppel.

Action was taken on the president's suggestion of some practical aid to the college. It was decided that a scholarship of twenty-five dollars be donated by the Alumni to the College, to be awarded at the discretion of the faculty.

A formal approval of the excellent work of Dean Froats in the College was then expressed. It was suggested that Dean Froats be secured as speaker for the next meeting. The meeting then adjourned.

Seminarians Review Last Year's Activities

Another swiftly passing year has been brought to a close in the Seminary. It has been a very successful year. As far as the Seminary is concerned success is not to be measured by outstanding academic achievement. Theological training is, to be sure, partly a process of mental training and mental endeavour. But it is also much more. Its chief aim is to build up the whole emotional and mental framework of the student in sound Christian principles. In a humanistic world, humanism certainly has its place in theological work, but the whole aim and end of theological training is to bring theology into its proper place in humanism and to retain it there, not to bring humanism to theology. In other words, its purpose is to bring Christ to the world and not the world to Christ.

In looking back over the year, the most prominent feature of the Seminary record has been the vital interest which the students have evinced in the work of the Seminary, as defined above. The bi-monthly meetings of the seminarians have been perhaps the most outstanding indication of this. Questions and papers were discussed with real life. Among the more interesting discussions were those on tithing as a practical means of keeping up the finances of the Church; the value of Liturgy in the Church; methods of raising money for Church support; the attitude of the Lutheran Church towards the Lord's Day Alliance and similar organizations.

One of the endeavours of the Seminarians which apparently failed was the formation of a Chapel choir under the direction of Mrs. Schmidt of St. John's Church, Waterloo. The fact that the choir was unable to continue may not be counted a failure however, since the student body is small and is already overloaded by extra curricular activities. A start has been made this year which, even though it was not permanent, will bear fruit as soon as the school is large enough to provide sufficient vocal ability.

The fine spirit of the Seminary also showed itself this year when the Chapel services were discontinued through examination time. Through the initiative of the Seminarians, informal evening devotions were continued all through the three weeks of the examination period. This evidence of real spiritual life is a tribute to those students who were responsible for the same. The good attendance at these devotions indicated the depth that is to be found in apparently carefree and gay students in both College and Seminary.

The Seminarians may also point with pride to the achievements of the Coesman-Hayunga Missionary Society this year. This society, un-

Seminarians Banquet

Dr. Little entertained the members of the Seminary at a dinner in his home on Wednesday, May 25th. The hostess, Mrs. Little, was assisted by Miss Marion Little. The excellent dinner placed everyone in a fine humour, heightened by the Doctor's usual wit. Toasts were given to the host and hostess, to the faculty of the Seminary and the graduating class. On account of the College prize night which was held on the same evening the gathering was forced to break up early. Nevertheless the spirit of the evening was very pleasant and formed a fitting conclusion to the activities of the Seminary for this year.

Under the energetic and efficient leadership of Eric Larsen, Hubert Casselman, George Durst and Fred Mueller conducted very interesting monthly meetings. Services were sponsored at First English Lutheran Church in Kitchener, at St. Paul's and Trinity in Hamilton, in Galt, in Brantford, in Preston, in Ayton, in Nemstad and in Waterloo. An attempt was made also to start a mission in the outlying parts of Kitchener, which however, proved impossible at present.

Two formal social gatherings were held in the form of dinners, one at Christmas, when Dr. and Mrs. Clausen entertained the Seminarians, and one at the end of this semester, in which Dr. and Mrs. Little were the host and hostess. Both dinners were highly indicative of the feeling of fellowship which exists between the students and professors. Two informal gatherings of the students were also held. George Orth was host at a dinner at his home; Mr. and Mrs. Rueza also entertained a group of the students at a dinner.

The Seminary this year has had almost a complete change in the faculty. It has been the first full year for Dr. Clausen as professor and the first year for Professor Sandrock. Dr. Neudoerffer has left, so that Dr. Little is now the only one left of last year's faculty.

Many of the Seminarians have taken active parts in the life of the College outside of Seminary activities as such. They have been doing Tutorial work in the College; they have played on many of the College teams; they have done work for the annual dramatic presentation of the College.

The Seminary graduates are two in number, Harold Nielsen and Eric Larsen. The Seminary was fortunate in engaging Rev. E. F. Sterz of Hanover as speaker at the graduation services. He gave the students a message of real inspiration.

Having reviewed the record of activities in the Seminary this year, the Seminarians feel that the year has been one of real endeavour and of corresponding success.

ATHENE TO ODYSSEYS (Sophocles' Ajax: lines 131-3)

Though a day layeth low all alike
Who are human withal,
And a day bids again that they rise,
Lo, the gods' love doth fall
On the noble of heart, on the wise;
But the evil forth-call
In their ignorance Heaven's dislike.

IMMORTALITATI

When I had learn that on life's common way
All objects dear to one were passing things,
My soul fled swifter than on eagle-wings—
Where what is loved must pass; Love has no stay—
Unwilling any longer to delay
Where every birth but prey for death forth-brings,
Since brittle life from crumbling matter springs,
And all mature in order to decay.
On towering cliffs the eagle builds his nest;
But my soul's wings of longing bore her on,
Until beyond this realm of time and space
In Him, who loves us he and love, new zest
She found for Love's immortal prize to run
With zeal life's relatively mortal race.

—H. Enns.

TO A MATERIALIST

Pity me not, for I have known Far lovelier things than you can own;

A birdland symphony at dawn,
The pulsing bush when it is gone;

The faint, far cry of a whip-poor-will;
Announcing night to a world grown still;

The tender touch of April rain
Which heals a heart disturbed by pain;

And wordless clasp of kindred hand,
When kind eyes say, "I understand."

Ab, no, my friend! Envy me then,
And save your scorn for poorer men.

Miss Eleanor Doherty Hostess To Graduates

Miss E. Doherty was hostess to the graduates at her home in London after convocation on Friday, May 27. She was assisted by Mrs. Allen and Miss A. Doherty. The table was decorated with tulips and the College colours. The class presented Miss E. Doherty with a lamp, in recognition of the service she has rendered during her two years at Waterloo.

This Week's Anecdote

Queen Victoria of Spain was an up-to-date sovereign, who wanted to see everything interesting when she visited Paris, particularly if King Alphonso already had had a chance to see it.

After dutifully attending the Classic Comedie Francaise and the opera on her visit to Paris, the Queen expressed a desire to go to the Moulin Rouge to see the revue. The police commissary assigned as escort threw up his hands in horror. "But your Majesty," he remonstrated. "The protocol! Has your Majesty thought of that?" By the "protocol" he meant the agreement between powers to protect visiting dignitaries against any situation which might be regarded as unworthy of their position.

"Weren't you assigned to guide King Alphonso about Paris?"

Juniors Have Two Functions; Sophomores And Freshmen One.

The seniors were the most active during Convocation week. On Saturday evening, May 21st, they were entertained at a dinner, given by the honorary president of the class, Carl Klinck. The function was held at Trail's End Inn, Conestogo. It was decided by the class that it become a permanent organization. Carl Seltzer, Verna Lauman and Herman Little, who constituted the executive of the past year, were elected to guide the activities of the class for the next year. After the dinner the seniors motored to Tavistock where they were entertained at the home of Carl Seltzer, president of the class.

On Sunday evening, May 22, they met with their friends in St. Matthews Lutheran Church, Kitchener, on which occasion the Rev. A. H. Schmoeyer of Niagara Falls, N.Y., delivered the Baccalaureate sermon to them.

On Monday afternoon they held their class picnic. The weatherman favoured them and from all reports they had a wonderful time.

On Wednesday they attended the faculty dinner to the graduating class, held at the Walper House, Kitchener. Bishop C. F. Derstine was the principal speaker on this occasion. He urged the graduates to "grow in stature wisdom and favour with God." Dean W. C. Froats presided. Other speakers were, Miss B. Mabel Dunham, Professor Carl Klinck, Miss H. M. Haug, dean of women, and Verna Lauman. Carl Seltzer extended a vote of thanks to the faculty for their hospitality.

Following the dinner they returned to the College to participate in the Prize Night program. E. G. Neigh delivered the valedictory and C. J. Seltzer the salutatory address.

On Thursday the seniors joined the rest of the College students in the mass picnic held at Swastika beach.

On Friday they motored to London to receive their degrees at Convocation. After the ceremony they were entertained at the home of Miss E. Doherty in London and then motored back to attend the alumni party held at the College.

Former Congregation Invites Dr. H. Schorten To Dedication

Dr. H. Schorten has been asked by his former congregation, Epiphany Lutheran Church, Hampstead, L.I., N.Y., to take part in the dedication of a new church building. Dr. Schorten was pastor of that congregation from 1904 to 1913.

Since the dedication is to take place immediately after Synod meets this spring, Dr. Schorten has not definitely decided whether he will accept the invitation.

The reports of last year's officers showed that the club had been run on an economical basis last year. Much of this was due to the many donations received from outsiders.

At a later meeting the office of provider which had been abolished for several years, was reinstated and was vested in the duties of the second vice-president.
